

CHOREOLAB GOES BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG

3 cities - 3 partners - 3 short productions - 3 performances at 3 venues

STARTING POINT

The format ChoreoLab, which originated in Ulm, is expanding into the country. The new dance format TRIALOG (AT) marks the start of a collaboration between three dance institutions from Baden-Württemberg. TanzLabor ROXY Ulm, Tanznetz Freiburg (together with its cooperation partner E-Werk) and EinTanzHaus Mannheim join forces to network the dance scenes of their respective cities and make them visible.

THE IDEA

Three choreographers from three cities work on a short production with 4 dancers (one from each of the participating cities), which then tours through the three cities as a joint evening. Rehearsals will take place in 2-week blocks in all three cities. Each choreographer can bring one dancer, the fourth dancer will be found together. The choreographers of the individual productions are to deal artistically with the theme of sustainability. With this in mind, the project as a whole will also take care to be as environmentally friendly as possible at the production level, for example with a lean tech set-up, short train journeys and bundled creation processes.
